"My case it is a happless one—
I'll leave this country,
For since my love has proven false,
No pleasure here I see." "If I could reach that mystic shore, Where troubles all do end; Or get out to the wild Black Hills, My fortunes I might mend.

My youthful hopes are blasted,
My heart is racked with pain
I'll bid farewell to Bosine,
And no'er return again." Since my true love has jilted me, I'll roam this wide world o'er,

And to Ohio county I'll return no more.
Upon the soil I lor'd so dear,
I never more shall stand.
Dear partner, if you hear of me,
I'll be in some far off land."

"Good bye!" says I, "old fellow,
May good fortune you attend,
And when that you get settled
A letter to me send."
To think that how his going away,
It caused me deep reflection;
But I heard from him the other day—
